WOMEN EMPOWERMENT

Jan Vikas Trust, Ranchi, considers women's empowerment an essential part of building an inclusive, equitable, and sustainable society. During 2024–2025, the Trust continued its efforts to support women by promoting awareness, confidence, skills, participation, and access to opportunities. The organization focused on strengthening women's social and economic position, particularly among women from vulnerable and disadvantaged communities.

Through awareness programmes, community meetings, counselling, and capacity-building activities, women were encouraged to understand their rights, responsibilities, available opportunities, and the importance of active participation in family and community decisions. The Trust promoted awareness regarding education, health, nutrition, hygiene, financial awareness, and social issues affecting women.

Skill development and livelihood promotion were also important components of the Trust's empowerment efforts. Women were encouraged to develop practical skills and explore suitable income-generating activities and self-employment opportunities. Such initiatives aim to enhance financial independence, improve household well-being, and strengthen women's confidence in managing economic and social responsibilities.

Special emphasis was placed on encouraging women to participate in community-level discussions and development activities. Their involvement in decision-making helps ensure that community programmes reflect the needs and priorities of families and women themselves. The Trust also encouraged women to support one another, share knowledge, and work collectively towards common goals.

Women's empowerment is not limited to economic independence; it also includes access to education, healthcare, dignity, safety, equal opportunities, and freedom to participate in decisions that affect their lives. Jan Vikas Trust therefore continues to adopt a holistic approach that addresses social, economic, and developmental needs.

Through its ongoing initiatives, the Trust seeks to create an environment where women can recognize their potential, develop leadership qualities, become self-reliant, and contribute actively to community development. Jan Vikas Trust remains committed to strengthening women's voices and opportunities and to supporting a society where women enjoy equality, dignity, and meaningful participation in development.

EYE CHECK -UPS

Jan Vikas Trust, Ranchi, organized and supported eye check-up activities during 2024–2025 as part of its commitment to promoting accessible healthcare for vulnerable and underserved communities. The programme aimed to create awareness about eye health, encourage early detection of vision-related problems, and help community members understand the importance of regular eye examinations.

The eye check-up programme provided an opportunity for children, adults, women, elderly persons, and other community members to receive basic vision screening and guidance. Participants were encouraged to report common concerns such as blurred vision, difficulty reading, eye strain, watering, redness, or other discomforts and to seek appropriate medical attention when required.

Qualified healthcare personnel and supporting staff guided participants during the screening process. Where further examination or treatment was considered necessary, beneficiaries were advised to approach appropriate eye-care facilities for additional consultation and follow-up. People requiring spectacles or other support were also guided regarding suitable next steps, wherever applicable.

Along with screening, the programme emphasized preventive eye care. Participants were made aware of the importance of maintaining personal hygiene, protecting the eyes from dust and excessive exposure to harmful conditions, maintaining proper lighting while reading or working, and seeking timely professional advice for persistent eye problems.

Special attention was given to children and elderly community members, as vision difficulties can affect education, mobility, independence, and overall quality of life. Early identification of vision problems can help individuals receive suitable support and reduce avoidable difficulties.

The programme also served as an important platform for health awareness and community interaction. It encouraged beneficiaries to take greater responsibility for their eye health and to understand the value of regular health check-ups.

Through the Eye Check-up Programme, Jan Vikas Trust reaffirmed its commitment to preventive healthcare and community well-being. The initiative contributed to greater awareness of eye health and encouraged community members to seek timely care. The Trust remains committed to expanding health awareness activities and supporting communities in accessing essential healthcare services.

PLANTATION

Jan Vikas Trust, Ranchi, organized plantation activities during 2024–2025 to promote environmental awareness and encourage community participation in protecting and improving the natural environment. The programme reflected the Trust's commitment to sustainable development and highlighted the importance of trees in maintaining ecological balance, improving air quality, conserving soil and water, and supporting biodiversity.

The plantation programme involved community members, children, youth, volunteers, and other stakeholders. Participants were encouraged to plant and care for trees in suitable community spaces, educational areas, and other locations where plantation could contribute to a greener environment. The activity also provided an opportunity to educate participants about the importance of protecting existing trees and maintaining healthy surroundings.

During the programme, awareness was created about environmental issues such as deforestation, pollution, climate change, loss of biodiversity, and the need for responsible use of natural resources. Participants were encouraged to understand that plantation is not only about planting saplings but also about ensuring their regular care and protection so that they can grow into healthy trees.

Children and young people were actively encouraged to participate in plantation activities. Their involvement helped develop environmental responsibility and encouraged them to become ambassadors for nature conservation within their families and communities. Community participation also strengthened the message that environmental protection is a shared responsibility.

The Trust emphasized simple practices such as saving water, reducing waste, avoiding unnecessary plastic use, maintaining cleanliness, and protecting green spaces. These activities complemented the plantation initiative and promoted a broader understanding of environmental sustainability.

The Plantation Programme was therefore both an environmental activity and an educational initiative. It encouraged people to take practical steps towards creating cleaner, greener, and healthier communities. Jan Vikas Trust believes that sustained community involvement is essential for achieving long-term environmental benefits.

Through this initiative, the Trust reaffirmed its commitment to environmental conservation and sustainable community development. It will continue to encourage plantation, environmental awareness, and responsible ecological practices to contribute towards a greener and healthier future for present and future generations.
